JUSTICE SECTOR TRAINING, RESEARCH
& COORDINATION PROGRAM

Exploring the Relationship Between the Rule of Law and Violent Extremism in the Middle East

A Justice Sector Training, Research and Coordination Symposium
The Rule of Law Collaborative at the University of South Carolina
JW Marriott Marquis Hotel, Dubai, United Arab Emirates
June 1-3, 2016

The discussion on countering violent extremism has gained increasing importance in the public discourse in many countries in recent years. While it is increasingly clear that a state's lack of adherence to rule of law principles can create grievances that may contribute to violent extremism, the relationship of violent extremism to the rule of law has not been adequately addressed. Recognizing that many factors contribute to violent extremism of individuals, a state's robust adherence to the rule of law can help to provide a pathway to defuse grievances and avoid violence. As self-evident as this relationship might seem, few forums have focused on the relationship between the rule of law and violent extremism and how these affect one another.

This invitation-only, workshop-style symposium seeks to examine how state-based formal institutions—particularly those charged with upholding the rule of law, such as police, courts and corrections—can contribute to the kinds of grievances that are associated with violent extremism. The symposium will also examine avenues for constructive institutional reform within the context of violent extremism. Participants will consider how injustices, both large and slight, can feed into violent narratives used by extremists and how more inclusive approaches towards governance may increase public trust. Finally, the participants will focus on the unique issues faced by vulnerable populations in the Middle East, including the need for greater accountability and the protection of human dignity.

Composed of experts and stakeholders from the Middle East and beyond, the symposium will seek to generate specific recommendations for reform from thematic working groups that will address current themes impacting the rule of law and countering violent extremism.

Day I

[ Unless specified, the entire Symposium will take place in Emirates Ballroom 5/6 Sixth Floor ]

08:00      Registration      [Foyer outside Emirates Ballroom 5/6 ]

08:45      Welcoming Remarks

09:15      Plenary: Countering Violent Extremism & Strengthening the Rule of Law in the Middle East

The opening session will focus on the relationship between adherence to a robust and comprehensive rule of law and the grievances that may encourage violent extremism. This session will also examine how fairer and more inclusive governments can help to avoid the kinds of cumulative grievances that may lead to violent extremism.

10:00      Session I: Slings and Arrows: How Failing to Adhere to the Rule of Law Can Lead to Violent Extremist Responses

This session will examine the spectrum of grievances rooted in the injustices committed by formal institutions. These injustices include, but are not limited to, systemic corruption, human and civil rights abuses, political repression, discrimination and marginalization, and arbitrary and capricious application of the law. This session will also consider how such injustices may contribute to a rise in violent extremist responses and specific circumstances or conditions that may accelerate these developments.

11:30      Lunch      [ Business Bay Sixth Floor ]

13:00      Session II: Push and Pull: How Violent Extremist Movements Use Rule of Law-Based Grievances For Recruitment

This session will explore how violent extremist movements invoke rule of law-based injustices as part of their appeal in targeted messaging to various constituencies, including women, disaffected youth and religious minorities.

14:30      Coffee Break      [ Foyer Outside Emirates Ballroom 5/6 ]

14:45      Working Groups Convene
